

Task

- Make the most compelling case for the role of nuclear-astrophysics in understanding neutron stars and dense matter
- Lay out the challenges and opportunities for laboratory measurements, theoretical modeling and astronomical observations to address this science in the next 7-10 years – with emphasis on the first two communities
- Indicate the resources needed to address these challenges and opportunities.