EXCHANGE OF STUDENTS

Wuhan University and Tennessee will facilitate the exchange of students, singly or in groups, between the two institutions as agreed by the coordinator of each. The home institution will screen its applicants for exchanges and the host institution reserves the right to accept or reject nominated students. Host institutions may set requirements with regard to student competency in language or other areas. Exchanged students must, throughout the exchange period, maintain levels of insurance coverage as mandated by the regulations of the host university or the laws and regulations of the host government.

Enrolling students will be exchanged at the undergraduate level only and on a strict one-for-one basis so as to maintain a balance of student-semesters between the two institutions. They will be enrolled in the regular courses of the host institution on a full-time basis and be classified as non-degree students. Academic credit earned at the host institution will be transferred back to the home institution in accordance with procedures determined by the latter. Students will pay tuition and other regularly required fees at the home institution. All other costs, including books, materials, transportation, passports, visas, etc., are the responsibility of individual students.

Non-enrolling students may be undergraduates or graduates and need not be exchanged on a one-for-one basis. The host institution will facilitate arrangements for appropriate educational activities and accommodations but not provide academic credit or transcripts to non-enrolling students of the other institution. Any academic credit which may be awarded to students under this agreement is the responsibility of the home institution.

EXCHANGE OF FACULTY MEMBERS

Wuhan University and Tennessee will facilitate the short-term exchange of faculty members, singly or in groups, between the two institutions as agreed by the coordinators. The host institution will facilitate arrangements for appropriate activities and accommodations. Each institution will maintain the salaries and benefits of its own teaching staff during such exchanges. Exchanged faculty members must, throughout the exchange period, maintain levels of insurance coverage as mandated by the regulations of the host university or the laws and regulations of the host government.
