

Everything But The Text: A Manuscript Workshop
February 9-10, 2007
The Marco Institute for Medieval and Renaissance Studies
University of Tennessee, Knoxville

Schedule

Friday, Feb. 9

- 8:00 am Registration and Welcome, Temple Court
- 9:00 A. N. Doane (Department of English, University of Wisconsin) and William Stoneman (Houghton Library, Harvard University): Twelfth-century annotations in the Old English Illustrated Hexateuch MS (London, British Library, Cotton Claudius B. iv)
- 10:15 Coffee break
- 10:30 Dorothy Porter (William T. Young Library, University of Kentucky): Methods for digitally encoding non-textual and paratextual aspects of manuscripts (the Old English Hexateuch MS)
- 12:30 lunch at Tyson Alumni House (provided)
- 2:00 Kathryn Salzer (Chancellor's Honors Program, University of Tennessee): Texts and Contexts of the surviving charters of Vaucelles Abbey
- 3:15 Coffee break
- 3:30 Wendy Matlock (Department of English, California State University, Sacramento): the intersections between illustrations and texts in London, British Library, Additional 37049 (a "Carthusian miscellany" of s. xv)
- 5:30 reception (Cash Bar), Cumberland House Hotel, Lobby Bar, 1109 White Avenue
- 7:00 dinner, Cumberland House Hotel, Parkview Room A

Saturday, Feb. 10

- 9:00 Timothy Stinson (Digital Knowledge Center, Johns Hopkins University): Marginalia in manuscripts of the Roman de la Rose
- 10:15 Coffee break
- 10:30 Rebecca Brackman (Department of English, Lincoln Memorial University): Notes by Elizabethan antiquary Laurence Nowell in a printed Latin-English dictionary
- 12:30 lunch (provided)
- 2:00 Charles Briggs (Department of History, Georgia Southern University): Organization, reception and use of manuscripts of moral philosophy, s. xii-xv
- 3:15 Coffee break
- 3:30 Natalia Lozovsky (Visiting Scholar, University of California, Berkeley): Reading Orosius in Medieval Europe: the uses of ancient history in Carolingian manuscripts
- 5:30 closing meeting
(dinner open)

Except as noted, all activities will take place on the 2nd floor of Temple Court