COURSE OBJECTIVES

Technical Skills

- Articulations, finger technique, tone and vibrato, intonation, breathing
- Music reading skills, sight reading, rhythm, transposition

Literature and Musicianship

- Learn, perform, and/or gain awareness of a broad range of flute literature, orchestral literature, and musical styles
- Develop critical listening skills by attending concerts, recitals, master classes, and workshops, and listening to recorded music
- Style recognition and analysis, analysis for performance, performance technique, early and avant garde performance techniques

"One cannot learn until one recognizes that s/he, indeed, has something to learn. Student flutists need to know that learning the art of flute playing is a continuum not an event. Professionals, if they are smart, often take lessons and coaching from others who possess a quality they admire and would like to understand and master. We were, are, and always will be students of the instrument." Cindy Broz

Flute Pedagogy

- Understanding the importance of becoming one's "own teacher," learning effective flute teaching techniques
- Develop the requisite social skills needed to learn by listening, criticizing, and accepting criticism from teachers and peers in solo class

Practice Expectations

Two (4) hours per day of practice is recommended. This may include traditional practicing, listening to CDs and live performers, attending seminars and master classes, marking and studying one's music.
